

- 1) The course webpage <http://webfiles.colorado.edu/billinsb> has a set of review problems by economic topic and also has answers to these problems. Students are encouraged to work on these problems and check them at their own pace. We will not go over them in class.
- 2) Before each exam, I will provide a exam problem set that will closely resemble the exam in terms of material and types of questions. Students are expected to go through these questions on their own and we will go over them in the class session before the exam.
- 3) The Krugman and Wells textbook Microeconomics has a number of online problems and a review of different concepts that are helpful for topics that students are having trouble grasping. You will need to register as a student on the website for access to this material. The website is <http://bcs.worthpublishers.com/krugmanwells>

Recitations Start: Mon, June 4th

Exam 1: Wed, June 13th

Exam 2: Fri, June 22nd

Exam 3/ Last Day of Class: Fri, July 6th

Information about the OSH and the campus resources available to assist individuals who believe they have been sexually harassed can be obtained at: <http://www.colorado.edu/sexualharassment/>